

Eduardo Rojí is PhD Industrial Engineering from the School of Engineering of Bilbao (Basque Country) and full professor at the Department of Mechanical Engineering since 2002. He is also coordinator of the Master's Degree in Construction Engineering of the University of the Basque Country.

His main research areas are focused on sustainable urbanism, sustainable building elements design and sustainability assessment in construction engineering areas, through deterministic and probabilistic variables.

He has take part in 10 research projects, 4 of them as main investigator.

Author of 15 books in collaboration, 18 scientific papers, 21 communications at national and international conferences and 6 PhD theses supervisor.