Meshfree and particle methods have been developed in the field of computational mechanics. The purpose of this mini-symposium is to provide discussions for researchers of the meshfree and particle methods to share their recent knowledge and advanced insights. The topics are mathematical theory, multi-physics analysis, boundary conditions, accuracy, adaptive analysis, parallel processing, large scale analysis, applications etc.